Collecting and creating network data from scratch is hard and time consuming. What comes to early modern studies, we should also try to reconstruct the networks between women.